“ It's July 29th and I thought it would feel a little better by now but it just dosen't. I hear a old song and my heart falls to pieces. I wait for the phone to ring in the middle of the night but of course it doesn't. I still haven't been to your grave sight since the day we left you there. I want to go but I think it will be really hard for me. This loss has been much harder than I thought it would be. I love you and miss you so very much. From where your at I know you know just how true that is. You'll be forever in my heart and a part of me as long as I live. Lisa

“Dad... it still feels like im in a dream right now, its hard for me to write this, i never thought God would call you so soon. because you always told me you would never leave me and be with me forever! Every since you passed i have just sat back and remembered the great things we did together, laughs we had and especially the many things you have taught me besides being the women that i am today, an i will never forget that...you are a one of a kind that was a Father and Mother to me that did everything for me and for others. And i know im going to be Fu*ked up for a long time okay! Years ago when i was just a lil girl work had to take you away from me and a few vactions all i did was cry because i wanted "my daddy". I had to sleep with ur work shirts. But right now, im sleepin with one of your shirts. i just dont understand still, I miss u dad, and I love you!

“I miss you Brother. Losing you is still not real to me. My heart will never stop loving you. I'm so glad we talked before you went to the hospital. You called me back just to tell me you loved me. We always said we loved each other when we said goodbye till we talked again. I wish I knew it would be the last time we talked...there was so much more I would have told you. You were good and kind to all. You are forever with me and your nephews. You are and always will be their idol. I'll see you again. Your wait will not be as long as mine. Rest peacefully my dear Brother, I love you.

“ Dear Brian, It's been two days now that I said my last good-bye to you. I am still trying to grasp all that's happened in just one short week. I have lived alone for a long time but, I never felt alone. I knew I could expect a call from you or a surprise visit. I knew if I wanted to talk to you about anything at all I only had to pick up the phone and dial your number. I don't think I have ever felt more alone than I do now. I am going to miss you much more than I had even imagined. I use to get mad when the phone would ring at 3:00 am and it would be you on the other end singing some song to me or wanting to talk about some special memory from years ago. I would give anything to get another one of those calls again. I miss you Brian, and my heart is broken in a million pieces. Sad doesn't even begin to describe how I feel. I am comforted in some way to know that all is finally well with you. I stopped asking if you still loved me along time ago. I didn't need to ask any more, because I knew you loved me. You never stopped asking me that and it is really important to me to know that you only continued to ask me that just because you wanted to hear me say it and not because you still had any doubts that I still loved you as much as I did when I fell in love with you. I'm sure you know now and it will be my burden to carry All My love Lisa

“ Dear Uncle Brian,

I am sure you can understand my absence during your service on Wednesday. However, I will always remember your great smile, those long talks about classic cars, life and the generous offerings in helping me celebrate my 30th birthday. We used to always talk about going to Japan. Well, when I see you in the next life we will go to Japan together.

Lets have miso ramen my treat!!!!

Sincerely , Angela (^_^)

“ To My Love, After 25 sometimes bumpy years I had to say my last good-bye to you and it was one of the most difficult moments in my whole life. I sure hope you finally found what ever it was you were always looking for. I promised I would be there when you took your last breath and I pray to God you knew I kept my promise to you. I'm not sure how difficult it will be to never hear you sing another song to me but, I hope you will be there to take my hand and help me through the really tuff times. We talked often about the little box we had for one another in our hearts that would remain forever. The one even death couldn't take away. Your in a place now where you can see the inside of my heart so, I know you are sure that the box is there and it belongs to only you. Keep my box safe too. I will see ya when I get there. I love you with all my heart,All my soul,with all that I am or ever will be! Your wife and best friend!
