“ The last three days have been filled with memories of Grandpa flooding back to me. I keep coming back to the times we would go for our nature walks at the Price Nature Center together. We’d talk about life and always be on the lookout for any wildlife we might be able to catch out of the corner of our eyes, as well as the perfect walking sticks for the hike. I remember all the times I would stay the night and we’d play games and watch Wheel of Fortune. I’ll never forget how he would always stay up late with me watching boxing or nature shows even though it was almost definitely past my bedtime. Of course there were the times he would help me with my homework which, even if his answers weren’t always correct, I always appreciated him trying. The times he would drive Grandma, Marissa, and I around showing us where he grew up and went to school are really special to me, especially how he’d tease us about going to see those places almost every time we got into the car. We’d tease him back about how we had just seen those places, but the truth is I really cherished that being his way of sharing memories with us and I heard so many stories during those drives that I’ll always remember. These memories only begin to scratch the surface, as there are so, so many more that will always keep coming back to me. But I have all of these amazing memories because of just how much Grandpa was in my life. I grew up down the road from him for the first 21 years of my life, and so much of who I am was shaped by his presence. He taught me how to whistle and his sense of humor shaped mine. He was always encouraging, always loving, and I’m going to miss him so incredibly much. I love you, Grandpa. Thank you for all of the wonderful memories that will last a lifetime.
