“ I met Bob shortly after I published my first Upper Peninsula book: "Murder on Sugar Island." It was on his recommendation that I began coming to the Sugar Island Music Festivals. Bob had a ver magic way of making everyone at the music festival feel important. Bob was a very special human being--one that will truly be missed. -

“ I met Bob when he let me play Sugar Island Fest one year. He made me feel so welcomed and comfortable there. It felt like we were old friends as soon as we met and I think that's just the way he spoke and listened and looked with his kind eyes and smile. He invited me back the following year but I was busy. A shame I would've really liked to have seen him again and thank him for giving me a chance to play and even asking me to come back. I won't forget him and I know he's at peace.

Old Bob, that's what I called him :) he was one year older than me. We go back to the seventies with dirt bikes and then thirty years of bluegrass music. Bob with his Martin guitar, he knew all the cords and songs. All of our good times are passed and gone, I cherish them.

Good bye Bob, I will miss you. R.I.P.

To Evelyn and the whole Family,

I am sorry to learn of Bob's passing. Bob and I met in High School at Birmingham Groves and attended Michigan State University for a year or so. After I was drafted and served in Vietnam, our paths crossed but once again in the early 1980's at Jeff Tappero's Home in Clarkston.

Although we didn't see each other physically, our spirits were always close. We never missed sending each other a Christmas card and short note. Bob had an infectious smile and great sense of humor. We considered ourselves best friends. I will forever miss and love him. He shared himself with everyone. May Bob R.I.P. and looking forward to seeing him again on the "other side,"

My deepest condolences, Terry Roberts
